WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—In a statement made to-day Foreman Dickson, of the star route jury, said he had been approached by Henry A. Bowen, who offered him $25,000 to vote for conviction, and represented himself to be an officer of the department of justice. He wanted to meet the attorney general, and said he had been telegraphed for, and he was expected in Washington next day, Thursday, August 24, 1882; that we could meet at Wormley's hotel undisturbed, and he would satisfy me that what he promised was correct. He further said: "Well, you are a man of the world and you know when you are in a fight you must use every means in your power to win. This is now the attorney general's fight and he must succeed. It is political life or death with him. He does not regard Judge Wylie as friendly to the prosecution by his rulings." He then said the case came to Brewster as a legacy from his predecessor, MacVeagh, and that it had been terribly mismanaged by MacVeagh and James. MacVeagh had been made, and the efforts of a class had jeopardized it, and the present administration did not care to press the case until Brady's papers commenced the trade of abuse and vilification of the administration and its officers, and now under all the circumstances

THE DEFENDANT MUST BE CONVICTED.

I asked him if any of the counsel for the prosecution knew of his action. He said they did not. Before leaving he said: "I will send word to your address to-morrow and arrange when we can meet and see the attorney general." On the following day, after the adjournment of court, I proceeded to my office. Shortly afterward a colored boy handed me a card with the following written in lead pencil.

DEAR C. W. DICKSON:—Eight o'clock this evening, H. BOWEN.

Friday, August 25th, I called upon Judge Wylie and informed him that an improper proposition had been made, and by whom. We considered about the matter and he said he would think it over and resolve upon a course to pursue. After adjournment that day he called me and he was afraid these damnable attempts to poison the jury might have been made on some of the jurymen and advised me to caution them privately, and that for the present he would not take action. I suggested that I could encourage Bowen, and probably let the proposition culminate into an actual deposit into the corruption fund and then he checked me by saying: "No. That has too much the flavor of police business." I said I would report to him any further facts I might glean from day to day. Some days after I had a conversation with him and told him that other jurymen had been approached and he said he would attend to the matter in proper time. I attempted to tell him the facts in the Bowen interview, but he prevented me, saying he did not care to know the facts in detail, or know what side of the case they represented. It was apparent that a person acting for the defense must approach jurymen with a corrupt offer, representing themselves to be in the interest of the prosecution, and vice versa, with a view of testing or entrapping jurymen. He again advised the strictest caution. Later on Mr. Albott intimated to me that he had been interviewed for corrupt purposes, but did not state the facts, and Donphan reported to me that a man named Shaw had offered him $2,500 to clear Dorsey. I advised him to report the matter to the judge, and he did so.

THE JURYMEN'S VOTES.

Until we took the first informal ballot, on the afternoon of Friday, Sept. 8, I did not know how any of the jury would vote, nor did I in the slightest degree endeavor to control their actions. And I refer to my colleagues to substantiate my statements. I could not discover any possible criminal evidence against S. W. Dorsey that was supported by undisputed facts. I explained my position to my colleagues fully, and when ever we discussed the charges in the indictment, or any of the other acts, I supported my position by facts sworn to by government witnesses. As to Brady, the testimony of Walsh, sustained by collateral facts in the evidence was what the prosecution depended upon to convict him. I must be allowed to judge of Walsh's highly interesting and illuminating testimony as it impressed me, and if I did not believe it in its entirety, or take much stock in the dramatic artist who delivered it. It is because I am differently constituted from others and I am sorry to say many of the public papers which demanded conviction without a hearing would have preferred to see a lot of automations, or troops of marionettes upon the jury to decide this case than to depend upon an honest jury sworn to decide as to the facts. Excuse me if I differ with the rest of mankind, and allow me to judge of my own responsibility.

The Pine Ridge Agency.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Acting Secretary of the Interior Joslyn, has a letter from Inspector Pollock, who is investigating the condition of affairs at the Pine Ridge, Dak., Indian Agency. The Inspector says: "This agency has already been inspected twice by my illustrious compeers, and yet the same dissatisfaction among the Indians, and charges against the agent are rife. Moreover, reports have been circulated that both inspectors who preceded me were 'bought up' to whitewash agents. Things have gone from bad to worse, until the prospect of grim visaged war has paralyzed the country with fear. Cheap running of the quarter-master's department is beginning to move the Indians, our unfeeling justice-loving white citizens sitting on the hill-tops watching till the opportunity occurs to secure ranches, on this solemnly guaranteed reservation. This is the largest, and the most difficult agency in the United States to manage. In addition to the many questions relating to the management of its business proper, there is also her great political context, of which the agent and Red Cloud are the principal actors, and which will cause bloodshed unless settled soon. I hope to effectually settle the trouble, but much time and great labor are required to fully understand and intelligently report upon the management and the difficulties surrounding this agency."

Failure of a Richmond Bank.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 12.—The Richmond Banking and Insurance company suspended to-day. No statement of the condition of affairs could be obtained to-day. The amount of deposits are stated to be about $60,000, which includes $33,000 belonging to the state of Virginia, the bank being a state depository. The amount was secured by bond with good securities. The actual liabilities are put down at $607,000. Charles E. Whitlock was appointed trustee for the Banking and Insurance company, and it is probable that in a day or two a definite statement can be made. Whitlock believes depositors will not lose anything except from delay. J. B. Davis, late president of the suspended bank, and Planter's National bank, is a brother of United States Senator Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, and much sympathy is expressed for him. A slight run on the Planter's National bank, which began immediately upon the facts of the suspension being made public, continued until about 10 o'clock, when matters quieted down under the assurance that there was no cause for alarm.

An Important British Victory.

KASSASSIN, Sept. 13.—The British troops this morning captured Tel el Kéber. The Egyptians lost 2,000 killed, and the British 200 killed and wounded. At first the fire of the rebels was very wild. It came from both infantry and artillery, and passed over our heads, they being disconcerted with the suddenness of the attack. With daylight the enemy's fire improved and became like a hail storm. Many fell, but not for a second did our advance stop. Our covering parties, lying down, fired, while those in front pressed on. Gen. Graham's troops worked with gallantry. Nothing could surpass their cheer, which resembled a wild yell, and could be heard above the din of musketry, as they charged up the steep slope of the trenches. The Egyptians were terror-stricken. Many hid in the corners of the works, throwing everything from them. Our work, however, was not yet ended. A large inner redoubt, on the Arabs' left, well manned and armed, still remained intact. But the British troops were not dismayed. With another brilliant rush they were among the enemy, bayoneting the gunners at their guns and capturing the heavy artillery. Thus we captured the key of the position. In fifteen minutes from the first rush we were its masters. The rattle of the enemy's musketry died away, while our men forsook their bayonets and picked off any rebels who still showed fight in their retreat. On the south the enemy stood a few minutes longer, perhaps a quarter of an hour, but the appearance of our cavalry on their right flank soon hastened their movements. In a few minutes the Arabs were flying out of all their entrenchments. A little later Gen. McPherson's Indian brigade burst on the flying foe from the south, and the rout was complete. Artillery coming up at a gallop unlimbered and sent their shot and shell after the rebels, adding to their confusion. It is believed the bulk of the rebel force will be captured, and that a death blow has been given to Arabi.

THE CANUKS ARE GLAD.

Apportioning the remaining 170 delegates according to its best information the Journal says the first ballot at Saratoga will stand as follows: Cornell, 123; Folger, 177; Wadsworth, 36; with complimentary votes for Wood, Robinson and Carpenter, ranging from 10 to 20.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 13.—In St. Anthony township, in broad daylight, while Mrs. Haight was in her house alone, a man, entirely naked except that he had a mask on his face, entered and tried to ravish Mrs. Haight, but did not succeed. He tied her hands behind her back and ransacked the house, but obtained only a few cents in money. The villain escaped. Three years ago, during the night, a naked man appeared at the same house, which was then occupied by another family, took a young girl out, tied her to a tree and then fled.

When Will This Thing End?

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 13.—The situation at West Bend is unchanged. The secret ballots were taken in the evening but did not change the result, and the convention adjourned until to-morrow morning.

"You Takes Your Choice."

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13.—A special from Boston says a private dispatch from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., states that Samuel J. Tilden is dangerously ill with softening of the brain, and his physicians have given up all hopes of his recovery.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—There is no truth in the report that Samuel J. Tilden is seriously ill. He was riding this afternoon through the streets of Yonkers.

Dickson to Brewster.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Foreman Dickson to-day sent Attorney General Brewster, a letter setting forth that attempts were made to bribe the jury in the star route case, and that he was himself approached by Henry A. Bowen, with a bribe of $25,000. The letter concludes as follows: "I demand from you protection against the venomous, malicious, and contemptible assaults upon my private character by your principal assistants and officers of the department of justice, for daring to perform my sworn duty according to my honest convictions of right and justice."

Big "Hoss" Trot in Boston.

BOSTON, Sept. 14.—The Blanchard $10,000 race for horses in the 2:17 class at Beacon Park, which has been looked forward to with great interest, took place this afternoon. The track was in fair shape. From 11 o'clock to the middle of the afternoon the thoroughfares leading to the park were lined with conveyances filled with people, while special trains brought large numbers. Fully 15,000 people were on the grounds and the most lively scene was presented. Delegations were present from all parts of the country. Before the race the betting was even on Edwin Thorne and Clingstone, Thorne being a slight favorite, with Santa Claus third choice. The judges were W. H. Wilson, of Kentucky, C. H. Keeler and B. S. Ricker, Boston. Keeler also acted as starter. The horses were called at 2 promptly, but did not appear until 2:30, when they drew positions as follows: Fanny Witherspoon, first; Santa Claus, second; Clingstone, third; Parana, fourth; Edwin Thorne, fifth; Helena, sixth; Humbolt, seventh. All the horses appeared in good condition except Santa Claus. He was quite lame, but nevertheless he trotted throughout the race.

In the first race much time was lost in starting. Fifteen times the horses came to the wire and were as many times sent back. On the sixteenth attempt a fair start was made, Parana slightly in the lead. Thorne came to the front, with Parana, Helena, and Clingstone following in the order named, and thus they went to the half-mile flag. Here Parana went back to fourth, Helena came up and from here to the home-stretch made a pretty race with Thorne. On home-stretch, however, Thorne pulled away from the mare and won in three lengths: Clingstone, 3rd; Fanny Witherspoon, 4th; Santa Claus, 5th; Parana, 6th; Humbolt, last.

Edwin Thorne now sold 50 against 40 for the field. In the second heat the horses were sent off well together on the fifth scoring. Again Edwin Thorne led after passing the half mile, with Helena second, Clingstone, third. Here Clingstone overtook Helena and gained second position. The other horses, except Parana and Humbolt gradually closed up, and coming into the home stretch were well bunched. Helena and Santa Claus here broke and fell back, but Thorne, Clingstone and Fanny Witherspoon kept together and trotted splendidly. Thorne, however, had a slight advantage and was close pressed by Clingstone. This order was maintained down to the home stretch, when all the horses showed fine speed. Clingstone was out-trotted, and could not overcome Thorne's advantage. Thorne finished, winner by head and shoulders; Clingstone, 2d; Fanny Witherspoon, 3rd; Santa Claus, 4th; Parana, 5th; Helena, 6th; Humbolt last.

Thorne stock again boomed, and he sold for 50 against 21 for the field. The celebrated stallion Smuggler, winner of the stallion race of 1874, and who has the best record of any stallion in the world, was now exhibited upon the track, and was greeted with great enthusiasm.

The third heat was somewhat prolonged by false scoring. Five attempts were made before the word was given. Edwin Thorne, Santa Claus, Clingstone and Parana rounded the turn in the order named, and so continued to the back stretch. At the half mile Santa Claus overtook Thorne, and the two went neck and neck to the three-quarter post amid tremendous cheers. Clingstone here came up with Thorne and Santa Claus, and the three kept abreast till half way down the home stretch, when Thorne again pulled ahead. Clingstone by a fine burst of speed overtook Santa Claus within a few rods of the finish and came under the wire less than half a length behind Thorne. The order of the finish was: Thorne 1, Clingstone 2, Santa Claus 3, Parana 4, Helena 5, Fanny Witherspoon 6, Humbolt 7. Thorne consequently was awarded first money, Clingstone second, Helena third, Santa Claus fourth.

Melville's Welcome.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The steamship Parthia, bearing Engineer Melville and party, was met down the bay. When Engineer Melville's broad smiling face was discovered by those on the tug they set up a shout of "There's Melville! God bless him!" A party of the Parthia's passengers started the song, "Home Again," and it was taken up all over the ship. Melville was soon on board an United States tug and made haste to the pilot house, where the ladies of the party were seated. His sister and nieces were warmly embraced by him, and everybody in the pilot house wept, as Melville sobbed convulsively, and held his sister to his breast. He sat for a few moments with his relatives and listened to their attempts to utter words of welcome. He parted his stalwart brother on the back and affectionately called him "Sandy."

Some of the more active of the Parthia's passengers had climbed into the rigging and were shouting, "Give us Melville." Several held aloft bottles of champagne. Engineer Melville stepped out of the pilot house and encountered Captain Wotten, the aged and grief-stricken father-in-law of the late Lieut. DeLong. Capt. Wotten grasped the engineer's hand, and after saying something in an undertone, wept like a child. Melville steadied himself against the pilot house, and covering his face with his brawny hand, seemed quite overcome with emotion. Tears filled the eyes of all who witnessed this scene and among the spectators were many of the Parthia's passengers. When they had dried their eyes some one proposed three cheers for Melville, and the response was enthusiastic and emphatic. Niderman and Norris, the seamen who were with Melville, seemed anxious to escape observation. When Niderman stepped into the pilot house he met his betrothed for the first time after his long and terrible absence. The meeting was very affecting. They sat in a corner and as they wept they whispered to each other. Lieut. Jacques had requested naval officers and other parties, not relatives of Engineer Melville and Niderman, not to disturb the quiet of the pilot house at this time, and his request was most cheerfully acceded to. Passengers of the Parthia continued to shout, "We want Melville." When the engineer appeared they repeatedly cheered him. Bottles of champagne were opened, and his health drank in many bumpers.

Melville and friends were then transferred to the steam yacht, on board of which were many naval officers, and where a welcome luncheon was spread, and hospitalities tendered by Alderman McClure. Tears trickled down the face of the engineer as he listened to the alderman's words, and when he attempted to reply he stammered and hesitated. He said he seemed to recover courage, and he said that he "felt that he had a right to say that he and his companions had done their duty. He had been in the government service 22 years, and had stood many kicks and hard knocks." Then he paused and said with much feeling: "And I would have stood by my friends if they had stood by me." He suddenly checked himself at this point, and Col. Church, on behalf of the citizens' committee welcomed him and his companions to this city, and invited them to a banquet in their honor at Delmonico's. Mr. Hall said to Melville: "Come, let us take a drink." Melville laughed as he replied: "Gents, I am something of a misanthrope. Every time I drink American whiskey I feel that I help to pay the national debt." Some one said to Melville: "How well you look, Melville." "Yes," replied the engineer with a strange emphasis on his words, "there is nothing the matter with my eyes." Melville was introduced to the reporters, and when asked whether he desired to communicate with the public upon any point of special interest, he said: "No, not at this time. The whole matter of the condition of the Jeannette, the trip and its results, is to be investigated by a naval commission of inquiry, and I am not allowed to say anything until examined by that court. Then everything will be made plain."

A Tremendous Scandal Brewing.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Post's Washington special says the district attorney, acting upon the information of Foreman Dickson, will issue warrants for the arrest of Brewster, Cameron and L. A. Bowen, to answer the charge of attempting to bribe the jurors. Merrick is busily engaged in getting the information in shape to prevent the district attorney from acting, so we are evidently on the brink of a very unpleasant scandal, involving charges and countercharges of bribery and perjury.

The Fight in Bragg's District.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 9.—The situation at the democratic convention at West Bend is unchanged. Numerous politicians who arrived during the day are engaging actively in lobbying. Delegates of both factions remain firm, and the balloting was conducted without change in the result until one thousand ballots were reached at 9 p. m., when the convention adjourned until Monday forenoon. The Delaney delegate approached Eugene Wael, a Bragg man, but not a delegate, with an attempt to bribe, is Philip Thein, of Rockfield. The latter said in an interview that no sum was mentioned, but he was simply asked: "Is there any inducement that would be acceptable, by which your vote can be secured for Bragg?" An emphatic negative reply was given.

Accident or Murder—Which?

ST. PAUL, Sept. 8.—A man named O. C. Hicks, of River Falls, Wis., claiming to be a contractor, boarded a train on the Manitoba road coming this way at Brickenridge last night, accompanied by Mrs. Seales, a widow and milliner of River Falls, who also has a branch establishment at Wahpeton. When near Doran, Hicks told the porter that he had directed the woman to a water closet at the end of the car, and that she had walked off the rear end of the car. The train was backed up two or three miles, and Mrs. Seales was found on the track in an unconscious condition. She was taken to the Minneapolis hospital, where she remains still unconscious. It is reported that Hicks has made several contradictory statements regarding the affair, which is a mystery.

Terrible Times at Panama.

PANAMA, Sept. 9.—There was another short but sharp shock of earthquake this morning at 5 o'clock. For the past two nights half the population of Panama have slept in or walked about the square. Many families camp on the plains, and few dare sleep in high buildings or on narrow streets. There is much sickness from fright and exposure. It is expected that traffic on the Panama railroad will be suspended as bridges are out of line. The freight houses at Colon are badly damaged. The island of Tobago suffered considerably this morning. Interior towns are reported damaged. The long dormant volcanoes of Chiroqui are reported to be in active eruption.

DANVILLE, Sept. 9.—This evening, John H. Johnston, mayor of the city, shot John E. Hatcher, late chief of police, inflicting a probably fatal wound. The parties met casually this evening, and Hatcher demanded an apology for a statement of Johnston, that Hatcher had not accounted for the fines he had collected. An apology was declined, and in a scuffle which ensued, Johnston shot Hatcher. Johnston surrendered himself and was admitted to bail in $5,000.

Can't Agree.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Shortly after 8 o'clock the jury in the star route cases came into court and reported that they had agreed upon a verdict only as to some of the defendants. The court refused to accept such verdict and the jury were directed to retire for further deliberation, despite the opposition of Col. Ingersoll, who held that those persons whom the jury had already found to be innocent should be discharged at once. A recess was then taken until 7 o'clock to-morrow.

Flight of Jail Birds.

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 9.—Last evening Wm. G. Murden, a notorious white man, and five negro prisoners cut their way out of jail. Bismarck, and started down the river, has been recaptured at Fort George Island, and the officers and crew made prisoners. The boat was officered as follows: Captain, David Campbell; mate, Jack Mooge; pilot, James Nolan; engineer, Ed. Lampson.

Startling Star Route Disclosures.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—In the star route case the jury came in, and announced that they had found Keredel and Miner guilty, acquitted Turner and Peck, and disagreed as to Dorsey and Brady. The judge discharged the jury. A motion was made for arrest of judgment in the case of those convicted. In the course of his argument on a motion for the renewal of bonds in the cases of the defendants wherein the jury failed to agree, Merrick said: "My motion is double—to increase the amount and require new recognition."

Ingersoll—"It seems this motion is made simply for the purpose of annoyance. The bond now given is good, legally speaking. The only reason for an additional bond, is that the jury has failed to convict the defendants, and the prosecution pretend that is good evidence that they are guilty."

Merrick—"The statement that the motion is made for annoyance is gratuitous."

Ingersoll—"I don't know that."

Merrick—"I don't know it."

Ingersoll—"I don't care what you know."

Merrick said he had more respect for the motive which prompted the motion than he had for Ingersoll's opinion.

"I don't want your respect," exclaimed Ingersoll.

"And I," retorted Merrick, "don't want yours."

"I don't want yours," continued Ingersoll, "and I should feel humiliated to have it."

The court deferred judgment in the matter, saying that he would on Wednesday hear Merrick's motion to require a new bond, and also Hinkle's motion for a new trial.

Foreman Dickson said he was requested to return the thanks and gratitude of the jury to the court for the kind consideration with which they had been treated.

Court—"The court parts with all of you with sentiments of entire friendship. I had hoped we should have been able to decide this case, but you have not reached any conclusions that can be regarded as a conclusion of the case at all. But I do not desire to cast an imputation upon the motives of any one. You have not seen the law probably as the court has seen it, but you have exercised your power under the law of deciding finally on the matters submitted you. You have decided the facts no doubt conscientiously, and it is not for the court to express any dissatisfaction, and I take pleasure in saying that with entire feelings of respect the court begs to express its gratitude for the patient and exemplary conduct which you have exhibited on this trial from the beginning to the close. Parting with you on these terms of friendship and respect, I have no suspicion nor does the court entertain any doubts in regard to this verdict as representing the conscientious convictions of the jury. It is not such a verdict as I should have been glad to see, but it is a verdict. It is your work, and you are responsible. The court is not."

Dickson—"As to another subject. At the close of the proceedings last Thursday, your honor made some severe strictures upon attempts made to bribe members of the jury. I stated then that upon the disposition of this case I would present such facts as I have, and I will present them in a sworn statement to you."

Court—"No, sir; not at all. Your experience may have been different from that of other members of the jury. No doubt the matter will be investigated in another way. It does not belong to your verdict."

Dickson—"No relation whatever?"

Court—"No. If it be true, as reported to me by several members of this jury, that efforts to bribe have been made, I think no more abominable, no more censurable depth of crime can be made. I think this is not a place for the court or jury to talk on the subject. It is a matter that should be in the hands of officers of the law, and if any scoundrel be convicted of such attempt, (I don't know whether a jury would convict him or not) we shall endeavor to do our duty. Good bye, gentlemen."

Here the lawyer on both sides declared their readiness to receive Dickson's statement, and the judge remarked that as both sides seemed so anxious to expose crime, a conviction would follow next time certainly. Court adjourned till Wednesday.

WASHINGTON PEOPLE ASTONISHED.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—The verdict in the star route case is received with profound astonishment by counsel and bar, as well as the general public. In an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, Mr. Dickson, foreman of the jury, made a general statement in regard to the alleged attempt at bribery, but he said he would to-morrow lay before the district attorney or his assistant, such facts as were within his knowledge. On the 23d of August he had been approached with an offer of $25,000 by an officer connected with the department of justice, who produced letters of appointment as special agent of that department, and stated that he was authorized to act in the matter if he would vote for the conviction of Brady and S. W. Dorsey. That statement would be corroborated by witnesses and by circumstantial evidence. There were other members of the jury who had been approached from different directions with offers of money, but the sums offered were small, $2,000 to $3,000. The man who approached him told him he represented the attorney general, but he (Dickson) did not believe that. He concluded that the man took him for fool, and that his only protection was to notify Judge Wylie of the matter. He suggested to Judge Wylie that he should coax the man on, but the judge remarked that it was too much like police duty, and advised him to do nothing but to keep clear of the man. The following day the man sent in his card asking for an interview, and appointing a time and place. He made no reply and had not seen the man or his companion, (who was the officer of the department of justice,) from that day to this. He made inquiry a few days later and learned that a man had left the city on the following day. He did not believe the man had $25,000, much less $25,000, and it was his opinion the man had been employed to get the jury to commit themselves. He would not allow this matter to drop, but would see the thing through.

Bragg's Faithful Adherents.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 11.—The democratic convention at West Bend to-day advanced to twelve hundred and fifty ballots. The Delaney faction indicates its willingness to take up a third candidate, but the Bragg men persistently adhere to their first choice. The Delaney followers are not willing to vote for Bragg. Fifteen more votes are necessary for his nomination. The day closed with the situation unchanged. It is believed that to-morrow will end the deadlock by Bragg's nomination.

The Maine Election.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 11.—One hundred towns give Robbie (republican,) 29,248; Plaisted (fusion,) 22,976; Chase (greenback,) 344; Vinton (independent republican,) 142; scattering 72. Robbie's plurality 6,727—a republican gain of 2,708.

Didn't Push Her Off.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 11.—Mr. Hicks who was arrested in connection with the case of Mrs. Seales, who fell or was pushed off a train on the Manitoba road, was released to-day, as it is believed he was not guilty of any dishonorable act.

The Minneapolis Tribune Sued.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 11.—Colton & Co. have brought suit for libel against the Tribune for calling them mercantile mountebanks and adventurers. Damages claimed, $10,000.

JOHN McCULLOUGH says of the Yellowstone Park: "It is the grandest country, spectacularly, God Almighty has made. Shakespeare's dictum 'Nature is greater than Art,' is here verified again and again. I confess that I was skeptical. I had read exaggerated accounts of it, as I then thought, and was as heretical as could be. The half was not told; not the thousandth part; nor can it be. Pages of description are all too faint, though strongest superlatives in language are used. Why, to sit on the edge of Hell's half-acre and watch Sheridan Geyser is to have a life time's memory. It is indescribably grand to watch it first sending up a cloud of steam, then water, higher and higher until the stupendous magnitude of the full eruption is reached."

The following from the Terre Bonne (La.) Times, reveals a terribly low grade of civilization on the Louisiana plantations: "One of the rules on Mr. P. Berger's plantation is that none of his hands shall live in a state of concubinage. This rule is strictly enforced. If Mr. Berger's example was followed by the planters of this state, it would go far toward improving the morals of the colored people."

MANY temperance people of Minneapolis united in addressing a card of thanks to Mayor Ames, which was published in the city papers, commending his determined prohibition of liquor-selling on the fair ground.

It is recorded as a remarkable fact that Windom and Dunnell, on meeting at the Minneapolis fair the other day, shook hands.

The Conductor and the Tenderfoot.

Stanley Hantley, in the Brooklyn Eagle, tells how a North Pacific conductor explained the management of the road to a grumbling tourist: "Now and then a chronic grumbler from the eastern states finds himself starring as a tourist out west and learns that the purchasing power of growls is not unlimited in that section."

"Where do we take dinner?" querulously demanded such a character of the conductor on the North Pacific railroad, traveling from Fargo to Bismarck.

"At Jamestown," courteously replied the conductor.

"Get there at midnight, I suppose," grunted the passenger.

"At 12:22," answered the conductor.

"Can't you stop somewhere and let me get a cracker?"

"Not very well, sir. There are no opportunities between here and Jamestown."

Finding himself treated in such a gentlemanly manner, the tourist turned loose and cursed the road from St. Paul to Glendive creek, and after finishing his dinner he took in the Duluth branch, and wound up with the officers and trainmen, consigning the whole business to bitterness and wrath eternal. The conductor made every effort to pacify him, but his exertions only stimulated the volume of abuse until the train stopped at Bismarck.

"Can I see you a moment?" asked the conductor, taking the tourist by the elbow and leading him to the quadrangle back of the Sheridan house. "You don't seem to understand this railroad system. Now, here's Duluth," and he spanned the tourist in the left eye. "And here's St. Paul," planting his fist in the other optic with terrible effect. "The two lines meet here at Brainerd!" which he mapped out on the bridge of the tourist's nose. "Then the trunk line runs along to Jamestown, where you get your dinner!" and he brought him a terrific one on the mouth. "From there to Bismarck is only a short run!" planting a crusher on the victim's chin. "and there you are!" landing him in a mud puddle, doubled up like a stomach ache, and howling for mercy. "You will notice that the vigilant officials are carefully scanning all points of the road!" and he marched up and down his prostrate student, who was now yelling for help.

"What's the matter, Jim?" inquired a friend, whose attention had been attracted by the controversy.

"Showing a bloke the advantage of our railroads over the eastern outfit," replied the conductor. "They never explain things where he lives, and I'm fixing it for him so he won't feel like grumbling another time he travels over our line. Wait till I point out the difference between the school sections and the railroad grant!"

But the tourist had eeled out of the puddle and gained the office of the hotel, to the disgust of the conductor and his friend, who were prepared to display all the attractions of the country, rather than see a stranger depart dissatisfied.

If a man wants to be abusive in that part of the republic, he wants to write out his views and mail 'em to his family. Careless expressions are very apt to pan disagreeable explanations.

A DAY OF JUBILEE.

THE BANNER RECEIVED WITH PROPER CEREMONIES.

The Heroes of Minneapolis met at Sterling With a Brass Band—Can-nonading, Speechifying and General Rejoicing.

Merit Reaps Its Reward.

Two weeks before the opening of the great Minneapolis fair, Hon. J. F. Wallace went to Minneapolis with a couple of car loads of grain for the Burleigh county exhibit. In an interview with the Pioneer Press at that time, Mr. Wallace stated that he had come down there for the prize banner and that he proposed to get it. Mr. Wallace being a practical farmer from boyhood knew that he had the material and all that was needed was the arrangement and effort to make the Burleigh county display the finest at the fair. He employed as an assistant a Minneapolis decorator, who with the assistance of five ladies, worked twelve days upon the pretty little cottage used for the exhibit. Hundreds of bouquets of wheat and oats were made and the entire building was so completely thatched with wheat and oats that the frame work of the skeleton could not be seen. Thus was the exhibit made attractive as well as meritorious on account of the excellence of the grain and vegetables. Every Bismarcker present at the fair became a boomer for his county, but the gentlemen having direct charge were, Hon. J. F. Wallace, Col. Wm. Thompson, Alex. McKenzie, Dr. Bentley, Ed. Sloan, B. D. Wilcox and J. A. Fields. The latter three gentlemen rustled between the Bismarck exhibit in the North Pacific display and the Burleigh county exhibit proper. They worked like beavers, and through their efforts Burleigh county has been conceded the highest diploma for its agricultural products. There were seven competitors, but Burleigh county distanced the field.

Now it was Received.

Arrangements had been made to welcome the banner and delegates Tuesday night, but it was learned Monday morning that they would be in one day earlier than was anticipated, so that haste became the watchword. Through the kindness of Superintendent Taylor of the Missouri division, Agent Davidson, of Bismarck, who, by the resignation of Dr. Bigelow, became chairman of the committee of reception, was enabled to obtain a special car from Mandan, and about 3-30 a party of over one hundred citizens left for Sterling to meet the regular passenger train bearing the banner. Mr. Whitney had secured a number of flags and with the assistance of C. R. Williams and others of the arrangements committee, a band of music and other comforts of travel were provided. There was a very generous SPRINKLING OF LADIES in the party. The following is as near a correct call as could be made: Mrs. Eisenberg, Mrs. Ludewig, Mrs. Lounsbury, Miss Davidson, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Eppinger, Miss Fisher, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Dunn, and her sister, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. B. A. Williams, Mrs. Stoyell, Mrs. C. R. Williams, Mrs. Wake-man, Mrs. T. W. Griffin, Mr. Pye, Mrs. Wm. Hollemback, Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Fairchild, Mrs. Call, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Walli, Mrs. Goff, Mrs. Plumb and daughter, Mrs. Miller, Miss Whitney, Mrs. Munder, Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. Louis, Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Frode, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Jewell, Mrs. J. B. Builey, Mrs. Jones, and Mrs. Von Duran.

Of the reception committee appointed by the meeting Friday night, there were present Messrs. John Davidson, J. H. Marshall, P. F. Malloy, John H. Richards, Robert Green, Dr. Porter, Dr. Hersey, J. P. Dunn, Rev. J. G. Miller, F. J. Call, Fred Strauss and O. S. Goff.

which accompanied the excursionists is deserving of a word of praise. It was gotten up through the efforts of Mr. Whitney, who sent to Mandan and obtained the services of three musicians, Messrs. Michaud, Cooper and Collins, and induced Messrs. Holdaday and Webber, of Bismarck to join the regular Bismarck Cornet band. Although without practice the band played most excellently and the "Banner Reception March," composed by Mr. Holdaday for the occasion was repeated by request several times. At Sterling the band furnished music for those desiring to "dance on the green," and while waiting an hour for the regular passenger train to come along and pick up the excursion, others of the party picked out corner lots in the new town, which is to be. As the train from the east arrived the band struck up and three rousing cheers were given for the banner which was exhibited from the rear end of the train.

ON THE WAY HOME.

After the regular train had coupled on to the excursion car the banner was carried into the car for the edification of the ladies who also gave three cheers for the silken emblem of success. Only Col. Thompson, J. F. Wallace, J. A. Fields and Ed Sloan, of the fair delegation, returned last evening, Messrs. McKenzie, Wilcox, and others being detained until to-night. Hearty congratulations ensued, after which "Running Antelope" and "Gaul," of the Sioux chiefs who returned last evening, were introduced to the ladies who went wild with glee at having an opportunity to shake hands with the noted chieftains who have taken more scalps than covered the craniums of the entire excursion outfit.

The Welcome Home.

ADDRESSES, MUSIC, ETC.

At least one thousand people had congregated at the depot awaiting the arrival of the train, and as the banner-bearers alighted from the car, the peals of the cannon completely drowned the shouts of the happy populace. Above the entrance to the Sheridan house was artistically arrayed a banner bearing the simple inscription "Welcome," beneath which Col. Thompson and J. F. Wallace passed with the banner to the veranda in the second story of the building facing the west. After the band had finished an appropriate air the cannon stopped its hurrah long enough to allow to make a few remarks of welcome on behalf of Burleigh county to their delegates who had returned with the laurels of success. Mr. Carland spoke as follows:

GENTLEMEN: It has become my pleasant duty to extend to you a hearty welcome in behalf of the citizens of Burleigh county, on your return to this city bearing the laurels of a glorious victory. No Roman general was ever more entitled to the honor of the triumph arch when returning with victorious eagles than those whose labors have made your victory possible. Your labors have been performed in an endeavor to encourage and foster the great industry of agriculture, and it has been truly said that no man is so high as to be independent of the success of this great interest; no man so low as not to be affected by its prosperity or decline. Agriculture feeds us. To a great degree it clothes us. Without it we could not have manufactures, and we should not have commerce. These all stand together, but they stand like pillars in a cluster, the largest in the center, and that largest is agriculture. Thus thanks are not only due to those who have contributed in making our county the banner county, because they have by their labors encouraged the great industry of agriculture, but also for the reason that their labors have placed Burleigh county in the minds of men far above any other locality, as a place where all the products of the soil can be most successfully grown. And this banner which you have returned to us as the emblem of your victory, should, and shall be carefully preserved, so that when in after years, through the benign influence of agriculture, this county shall be peopled with a happy and prosperous people, and this city busy with its manufactures and commerce, your children and your children's children may look upon it and return thanks to the pioneers through whose labors they were enabled to enjoy happiness and prosperity. Gentlemen, in the name of the commonwealth of Burleigh county, I extend to you the most heartfelt gratitude.

COL. WM. THOMPSON

was then called and after the band had finished another piece, spoke as follows:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: As a citizen of Burleigh county and an agent in the exhibition of our country's products at the recent exposition at Minneapolis, I am profoundly thankful for the kind appreciation of our citizens, as expressed by Mr. Carland, of our services and for our success on that occasion. This success was not attributable to any exertion of ours, so much as to the energetic and industrious cultivation of our superior soil, aided by our insuperable climate. The success which you are here, to signalize is attributable mainly to your sagacity, your industry and your efforts. Six or seven years ago this was an unknown land, but from small beginnings great results may follow. I may be truly said in this case that "Behold how a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump;" and what an immense conflagration proceeds from a single spark. Some six or seven years ago, you sent a few specimens of the wonderful products of this county to the exposition at Minneapolis. This was treated with consideration and admired. Your efforts in this direction have been respected annually with increased success, until they have culminated in this most wonderful success.

Here you have a banner emblematic of our agricultural success and supremacy, obtained by the decision of a committee of men of enviable national reputation, Gen. Le Duc, Ex-Gov. Marshall, C. A. Pillsbury, and E. M. Loring, awarded it to you against the whole field of exhibitors, some of whom were beaten on the outset, but especially against those who dared to enter for the combat. There were the counties of Anoka and Clay in Minnesota, Anoka and Moorhead, the county seats, and Cass, Barnes and Stutsman, in Dakota, of which Fargo, Valley City and Jamestown are the county seats.

This, your exhibitors deem a most signal victory, and an evidence that "Time at last sets all things even." This victory is yours; your faith in the natural advantages and value of our county, with your exertions to develop and exhibit it has won you this beautiful banner, and to you your exhibitors do now with greatest possible pleasure deliver it. Long may you preserve and cherish it.

HON. J. F. WALLACE

who had the supervising charge of the whole Burleigh county exhibit, was then called, who spoke as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS AND FRIENDS: This demonstration is so touching that I will not be able to respond as I should. I can only say that "peace hath her victories no less renowned than war." That through your faith and confidence in the country, and by your industry the seed was sown that has brought forth this glorious banner. Now let us under its graceful folds swear that by the advantages secured to us by nature's God, by inspiration taken from on high, by hearts beating in unison, will we strike hands and beautify the hills and valleys surrounding us with groves, fruit and flowers, "that it shall blossom as the rose," and that here shall be built a city that will rank the first in size, the first in beauty, the first in good order and good government in North Dakota. The band then played "America," and John A. Stoyell was called, who spoke a few well chosen words, after which the crowd dispersed. All in all the event was the greatest in the history of Bismarck. Never was there so much earnest rejoicing and genuine patriotism displayed. Indeed, it is an event over which this community may well feel proud. The banner is dear to every Bismarcker, of course, for what its possession signifies; but it is, in and of itself, a thing of exquisite beauty. It was well described in these columns only a few days ago. Every Bismarcker and every Burleigh county farmer will, of course, go and see it himself.

The value of this award to Burleigh county can scarcely be estimated. It is worth millions, and the TRIBUNE is pleased to note the enthusiastic manifestations of its citizens.

Fargo Didn't Want it Either.

Fargo Argus: "The Argus congratulates Sheriff McKenzie, of Bismarck, on being able to carry home with him from the Minneapolis fair the silken banner presented by President King to the handsomest man in the Northwest. It is said that some of the cheeky ones in Bismarck are pretending that the banner was given by the fair management for the best display of cereals from Dakota, but Fargo understands better.

The Body of Smith Found.

THE academic department of the university of Dakota will be opened for the reception of pupils about the 15th of next month. The university was located at Vermillion by the territorial legislature as long ago as April, 1862, but the enterprise of really establishing the school has only recently been taken hold of. Last year congress made an appropriation of seventy-two sections of the public lands in the territory for the use and support of the university, and in May, 1881, articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of the territory. The people of Clay county have voted $10,000 to the university, and with this fund the trustees are now erecting the west wing of the university building on a ten-acre lot donated to it by Judge Kidder, president of the board of trustees. In this wing the academic department will be opened, under the principalship of Eph. M. Epstein, M. D.

Not one word reflecting on the character or ability of John B. Raymond has yet been uttered in any section of Dakota. All concede the fitness of the nomination. It was unthought on his part. Not a man was solicited to vote for him, but the means used by some of his friends to, secure the nomination were simply infamous, and when all have spoken on this subject it will be seen that the trades, the sacrifice of principles, leading up to it, meet with the severest denunciation, and the TRIBUNE regrets that to the northern part of Dakota belongs whatever of credit or infamy there was connected with it. The north promised the fullest consideration of conflicting claims to seats in the convention and the fairest treatment, but repudiated every pledge and admitted contesting delegations without any regard to right or justice; it was simply a question of power to admit and of satisfactory pledges in return for admission.

THE Grand Forks Herald treats Bismarck in the following graceful style: "To Bismarck was given the banner for the best exhibition of cereals in the Minneapolis fair. While Burleigh is a good county, in fact plenty good enough this side of heaven, yet it is impossible to make the people here believe that it is the best county in North Dakota, as long as the marvelously rich mud of the Red River valley continues to give up its yearly forty bushels to the acre. Whatever the merits may be, Bismarck and its country deserves the banner for the energy and enterprise of its people who sent the magnificent display to the greatest fair on earth."

A MEETING of the North Dakota citizens attending the fair as visitors and exhibitors was held at the Nicolle house, Saturday evening last, Col. Wm. Thompson, of Burleigh county, chairman. Walter Dennis, of Stutsman county, secretary. Resolutions were offered by J. F. Wallace, of Burleigh county, expressing thanks to Col. W. S. King and assistants, and also to the citizens of Minneapolis and St. Paul, for attentions, favors and hospitality during the fair; and that to Col. King they owe much for the rapid growth and settlement of Dakota, and that he will ever have a warm place in the hearts of the people of the northwest.

THE Bismarck Weekly Herald made its appearance on the 13th inst. It is a six-column quarto, all printed at home. Unusual good taste is shown in its make up and in the selection of matter. It is clean cut and vigorous in its editorial columns and the TRIBUNE is glad to note, is well patronized by Bismarck merchants. Money paid to the newspapers is not money thrown away, by any means, and the newspapers of Bismarck are doing, and have done their part toward bringing the reward that the settlement of the country will bring. Arthur Lion, James A. Emmons, and Frank P. Brown are the leading parties interested in the Bismarck Herald.

General Manager Merrill, of the Milwaukee road, is a democrat, and he announces that he will pass the delegates to the Mitchell territorial democratic convention free. Mr. Merrill, however, would do that for the republicans just as quick.

T. W. TEASDALE, of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, if he were a resident of Dakota, would be called a rustler. His latest scheme to popularize his road is a grand excursion to Canada, Sept. 19. This arrangement is made in connection with the Michigan Central from Chicago, and the round trip fare from St. Paul to Toronto is only $22. Doubtless hundreds of Canadians will take advantage of this opportunity to visit their eastern friends.

THE Fargo Republican finally admits that Burleigh county got away with the prize at Minneapolis, and with a "brotherly" love truly refreshing adds: "The Republican will take occasion to say, dear brother Lounsberry, that it heartily congratulates Burleigh county on its success in carrying off the prize. But where would you have been in the contest if Fargo hadn't been so busy in securing the prize banner at the Grand Forks exhibition? We didn't want to secure two prizes at the same time."

THE internal revenue receipts of Dakota are increasing rapidly. Ex-Gov. Pennington recently stated: "For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1878, the receipts were about $30,000; for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1881, the receipts were something like $48,000; for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1882, the receipts were over $67,000, which I consider was a big jump. In July, the first month of the present fiscal year, the increase was nearly fifty per cent. I estimate the present year's receipts at from $85,000 to $100,000."

THE Burleigh county case was submitted to the delegates from this legislative district, and it was understood that Burleigh county should be entitled to the same representation as Barnes, Stutsman or Ransom counties, and it is to be hoped Burleigh county will accept the situation and join with the republicans of this district in gaining a glorious victory for our party.

A HANDSOME little pamphlet, the programme and premium list of the coming Fargo fair, Sept. 19 to 23, has been received. Those Fargo fellows will give a fair nearly equal in merit to the Minneapolis exposition, but of course there will not be so great an attendance.

THE Argus says that among the congratulatory despatches received by J. B. Raymond, was observed one from Captain D. W. Maratta, of Bismarck, tendering his hearty congratulations, and stating that he should endeavor to have the democratic convention endorse Captain Raymond's nomination.

THE eight bridge roughs who came up to wipe the faces of good citizens in the gutter, Monday afternoon, were brought before Justice Hare yesterday, and each fined $14.70. Hereafter when the bridge boys come to Bismarck they will probably be content with a quiet time.

AN intelligent, well dressed young Chinaman, who applied to Judge Wylie in Washington for papers of naturalization, was informed that the provisions of the bill passed at this session of congress, absolutely forbade the naturalization of Chinese from the date of its passage.

WM. H. BECKER, of Ellendale, has very sensibly withdrawn from the canvass as a candidate for the Dakota legislature. He withdraws, however, in favor of W. F. Bascom, of Ransom county, a most excellent gentleman who, if elected, would prove a most efficient member.

Now that there will be a temporary lull in the star route cases it is presumed that the Gen. Sturgis soldiers' home difficult will be brought up to disgust a patient people.

If, "as goes Maine, so goes the Union" be true, then the republicans need have no uneasiness, for the party has been victorious in that state over five distinct other tickets.

THE Minneapolis Tribune says that the success of the fair is greatly due to the exhibit made by Burleigh county and North Dakota.

THE Yellowstone Journal says: "The Daily Press' utterances on Bismarck are, to say the least, the very acme of journalistic ability."

THE Minneapolis Tribune glories in the fact that the population of that city is 80,000, and the paper's daily circulation 10,000.

THE Bismarck Weekly Herald, an eight page paper, will be out to-day, and if reports are true, will be a boomer.

NEWS COMMENTS.

THE great "approached"—Foreman Dickson.

COL. KING reports the receipts of the big fair from all sources at $50,000.

THE Jamestown people are thinking of establishing a reading room in that village. Bismarck has a good one already. It is one of her solid institutions, and the Banner city points to it with pride.

It seems almost incredible that Bob Ingersoll, whose speeches abound in such exquisite raciness, can be so stupid in repartee as he is represented to have been in his tilt last Monday with Lawyer Merrick.

DULUTH Tribune: Dakota ought to be satisfied, a man was nominated as her delegate whom all agree is a first-rate man, and as toothsome a plum for compromise as could have been found in the territory.

MOOREHEAD News: Senator Vest has come up to Fargo to see if the Yankton county bonds are valid. He wants to clothe himself with southern Dakota breaches of faith in order to prevent division and admission next winter.

THE cheek of the Fargo man paralyzed a reporter of the Minneapolis Tribune the other day. Said the Fargo man: "Fargo is now certain of one member of congress. No one questions Mr. Raymond's election. Now if we can elect C. F. Kindred Fargo will have two members."

EX-SECRETARY BLAINE, in a speech at Westport, Me., the other day, took up the subject of civil reform, and presented what he declared if tried he confidently believed, would prove a panacea for all evils now complained of. He favors a seven-year tenure without removal except for cause, which must be specified, proved, and made a matter of record.

WESTGATE, the self-accused murderer of Lord Cavendish and Secretary Burke, is said to be a raving maniac. There may be nothing in his confessions, but his sudden breaking down would indicate that he had been suffering from great anxiety and excitement produced by some more than ordinary cause. What that cause was will probably never be known unless Westgate recovers his reason, which is extremely doubtful.

THE New York Sun thinks the present cabinet has too many grandfathers and too little fresh blood and sinew, and intimates that it is soon to undergo some important changes. Mr. Teller is said to be in Colorado arranging for his election to the senate; Frelinghuysen will probably be sent to England to supplant Minister Lowell; Folger is fishing for the nomination as governor of New York; Postmaster General Howe is the oldest man in the cabinet, and has found his work so distasteful that he will probably be glad to retire to private life.

THE Jamestown Alert snarls like a burglar's bull-dog, because the TRIBUNE has referred casually to the victory of Burleigh county at Minneapolis, which the Alert in a dreadfully sarcastic way characterizes as an "unsought but worked-hard-for honor." The honor was sought, and it was worked for. But whatever necessity for rustling Burleigh county may have felt, she certainly never held Jamestown responsible, and the Alert's temper would certainly have been improved if fate had dealt more kindly with its bullwhip in the matter of that ungut but hard-worked-for honor.

GRAND FORKS Herald: The prospects for division of the territory were never brighter. North Dakota, by the way, captured the place of holding the convention, the nomination and everything else it attempted, has made a record which will be the heaviest possible argument for division, in the minds of the south Dakotians. They look on North Dakota now as a very desirable section to be divorced from. They regard a section which calmly takes in the pot on all possible occasions as something undesirable in the family. Hence division with them is a consummation devoutly to be wished.

SPEAKING of cigarettes, a writer in Harper's Weekly very sensibly says: "We ought long ago to have made it as easy for a boy to learn to drink as it is to learn to smoke. What is needed is some means of supplying boys with whisky in small quantities, and with its fiery and objectionable taste partially concealed. We should have whisky-ettes as well as cigarettes. With their aid a boy could easily accustom himself to whisky, and make fair progress toward becoming an able and successful drunkard without once experiencing the unpleasant sensations which sometimes so thoroughly disgust the youthful drinker as to induce him to entirely abandon all hope of learning to drink."

A FEW days ago the Jamestown Alert said: "A lot of Sioux chiefs passed through Jamestown yesterday, en route to the Minneapolis fair, with agricultural products, and 'scalps obtained at the Custer massacre.' Shame!" Upon this the Yankton Press and Dakotian comments as follows: "An agricultural fair is supposed to be an institution where the products of the country are brought together for exhibition so that the masses may view them, and the producers may exchange experiences and profit by the knowledge thus acquired. The downtrodden red man has heretofore had no opportunity to avail himself of the facilities extended to his white brethren for a comprehensive interchange of views, and now that the public is waking up to the importance of encouraging the toiling Indian, it is out of place for editors to throw in discouraging suggestions. It is well known that since the Custer harvest was gathered there has been continuous general failures of the scalp crop in the northwest. If by communing together at the Minneapolis fair a large proportion of the population of Dakota can find means of attaining a more prolific reward for their labors, that portion of our territory which has never experienced the quickening impulse of a boom will speedily occupy a place in the foremost rank of progress. We are in favor of encouraging Indians to exhibit their products at agricultural fairs. They need a helping hand once in a while."

THE Dakota State Journal is the name of a new paper started at Miller, Hand county, by Johnson, Sprague & Co. The Journal is a bright, clean-looking sheet, and the TRIBUNE trusts it has come to stay.

THE Fargo Bee says: "Cass county, by the aid of its brass band, made itself heard more at Grand Forks, than all the rest of the territory." Yes, according to all accounts the most conspicuous feature of the entire Cass county outfit was its brass.

THE Dakota Coyote has set up its yelp at Elk Point. The Coyote is a newspaper, and it gives evidence of some ability of the coarse-humorous kind. It is also a very creditable sheet typographically. But its name is a scathing commentary on the intellectual caliber of its projectors.

ARGUS: "The resources of the Argus are boundless. It's head devil took a hand at Grand Forks, Colonel Dunan is now on his way to advise the Episcopalian bishop how to run the diocese, while numerous other attaches mingle with and are part of the Phantasies of Penzance, Pinafore and other operas."

DULUTH Pioneer: Papers "up north" are beginning to realize that E. V. Smalley is a very mediocre writer, and that the Century is a very cheap "magazine," devoted principally to advertising schemes. The Pioneer could have imparted information on both points, long ago.

THE Grand Forks Herald says: Grand Forks practically licenses prostitution. There is an understanding that the inmates of the houses of ill-fame are to be fined once a month. To this they agreed; but the city authorities have been crowding the mourners and calling around oftener than stipulated time. Hence the disturbance which is being created.

THE star route trials have been a big bonanza for the lawyers. The payments already made on the accounted expenses in the prosecution of the cases are as follows: B. H. Brewster, for services and expenses before his appointment as attorney general, $5,000; W. A. Cook, $6,702; George Bliss, $19,251; W. W. Kerr, $6,627; R. I. Merrick, $5,000; A. M. Gibson, $5,000; total, $47,480. The total expenses of the trial are $200,000.

THE Moorhead News says: Raymond is a man of the people like Abe Lincoln, abounding in good sense and canny appreciation of popular wants. At Washington the leading senators and congressmen will take off their hats to him and show him the respect his character deserves. Now Dakota will be erected into a new territory while John B. Raymond is in congress.

THE banner had just been awarded, and the vast throng of humanity, thrilled with the enthusiasm of the hour, surged around the Burleigh county exhibit. It was the greatest, the most tremendous moment of Farmer Wallace's life, and from an elevated position he was proclaiming in clarion tones, the glories of the Missouri slope. By and by he became conscious, vaguely, of a strain on his coat-tails, but being very much preoccupied he heeded it not, until a series of more determined yanks brought him to a distinct realization of the fact that his attention was desired behind. On turning about, the farmer discovered a small, ragged and dirty, bootblack, over whose countenance there played a perfectly open-hearted and congratulatory grin. He said: "Well, by G—d! Got there, didn't you old man?"

SUPERINTENDENT HOBART has been talking to an Argus reporter about the proposed improvements in the National park. He says no railroad can be run in the park, but the North Pacific will have a branch completed to its northern boundary by June 1, 1884, and stage lines will be run through the park in all directions. The government specifies that the company having charge of these improvements shall build twelve hotels, and two complete sawmill outfits are now en route to the park to cut lumber for their construction. Mr. Hobart says 5,000 tourists visited the park this year, and next year 25,000 to 50,000 are expected. No extortionate charges will be permitted. It is proposed to make rates as low as at any popular watering place.

D. M. KELLEHER, the "democratic war-horse" of Jamestown, has written a decidedly spicy article for the Jamestown Alert on the result at Grand Forks, from which are taken the following extracts: "Mr. Editor—Your dispatches of this morning inform me that Mr. Raymond of Fargo was nominated at Grand Forks. It is unfortunate for Jamestown. What man from the Red River valley ever did ought else but misrepresent the James River valley? In Fargo more minds have been poisoned against this country than years to come can instill with the true grandeur of our surroundings. Fargo seeks to become the capital city, the Rome of this northwestern empire, and of all the treasures which its Caesars have brought home to fill its generous coffers, none have been nor will there be any as potentially invaluable as the delegateship. Better far for us, had either Hand or Pettigrew been nominated. * * * Are we of James River valley like Ulterior Gaul, only a tributary province of the imperial city of Fargo? As our interests, our future hopes of the capital, a land office, etc., to be sacrificed, our rich hopes pauperized that the splendor of Fargo's magnates may be brighter, their palaces more princely? Why all the cry against a South Dakota man if its outcome is to be the election of a man whose feet are yet wet with the dew from the cow-fields of South Dakota? Does a man who owns a few lots in Fargo become entitled to be called a North Dakota man? * * * Let the people of North Dakota emancipate themselves; throw off the bondage of Fargo and be no longer a parasite depending on the genius and brains of that city for their life blood."

THE nomination of John B. Raymond meets with universal approbation. He was the second choice of almost every faction and, as the result proves, he was the only man in North Dakota on whom all could unite—who could command strength from the south, and when Mr. Pettigrew was beaten and his friends released from their obligation to him, it was an easy matter for them to go to Raymond. Mr. Raymond is universally esteemed for his genial ways, unquestioned integrity and personal worth. There are things connected with his nomination, however, which should and will meet with popular condemnation. It was unwise to attempt to force, as they did, every North Dakota delegate to declare himself for Raymond, regardless of his personal preferences or of assurances given to others. In the first caucus held to consider the situation from a North Dakota standpoint, such an attempt was made and all who would not then take a stand for Raymond were regarded as traitors. A committee on credentials was appointed and to them were referred all contests. The chairman, it is to be presumed, chose honest men. They labored almost day and night, and made a report which was supposed to declare the convictions of honest men in relation to the persons entitled to seats in that convention. It was then a trade was made by which certain contested delegations were thrown out and others admitted. The report of the committee was repudiated and all contests were settled, not in accordance with right and justice, but as agreed upon at the time the bargain was made. It would have been equally honorable to have settled every one of these contests on a single ballot at the opening of the convention, and without a hearing. John B. Raymond could have been nominated without his friends resorting to trickery in a single instance and on the first formal ballot, and a nomination so tendered would have been far more complimentary to him. He deserved more consideration at the hands of his friends. Burleigh county cast its ballot for its favored son, John A. McLean. It voted in every instance to sustain the action of the committee on credentials, refusing to be transferred or to vote except as its delegates believed to be right. Of all North Dakota it was practically alone, and will doubtless be charged with treachery to the north, but there was an undercurrent of feeling throughout the convention so strongly favoring its position that its presence could not be mistaken, and the TRIBUNE wishes to be placed on record as expressing the belief that only time, and but a short time at that, will be required to prove the wisdom of the course taken by the delegates from Burleigh county.

THE news of J. B. Raymond's nomination at Grand Forks was received in the city with interest, and by his many warm personal friends, with rejoicing. Pettigrew had but few pronounced friends in Burleigh county, and Hand had still less. The citizens of this section were in favor of a North Dakota man, and knowing that it would be impossible to nominate a man from the Missouri slope, they are content with J. B. Raymond, who, in fact, was the only man in the Red River country that the people of the western part of North Dakota would have been satisfied with. Raymond will get the office under much more pleasant circumstances than it has heretofore been obtained. He not having sought the position he has made no pledges and will have no string upon his convictions. To be sure, he is a Red River man, but his personal, not political interests lie in that district. The TRIBUNE has every reason to believe that Mr. Raymond will discharge his duties in Washington impartially, and his extensive acquaintance in the capital city and with government legislators will give him an opportunity of doing much for Dakota even though it be a territory. It's a victory for North Dakota and the people of this region have just cause for congratulation.

THE Moorhead News says: "Moorhead has done herself credit at the Minneapolis fair, although the superior enterprise of Bismarck has won the colors. The fact was with us, our people were too busy getting in their harvest and building magnificent public and private buildings to do much for show. This county is certainly as fertile as any along the line of the new northwest, but we are not anxious enough to show them. Perhaps in time our citizens will awake to the importance of aiding the public spirit and good taste of those few of their number who are willing to make an effort. Bismarck is to be congratulated on her merited honors. Burleigh county will probably receive a thousand settlers this year on the strength of it."

Four years ago when J. B. Raymond was appointed U. S. marshal for Dakota, Capt. William Harmon, who was then at Fort Lincoln, sent Capt. J. W. Raymond, of Bismarck, a quart bottle of wine, with congratulations, supposing that it was his Bismarck friend who had been honored with the appointment. Capt. Raymond kept the bottle of wine, and has had it on his private desk ever since, waiting to place it in the hands of J. B. Raymond should opportunity ever offer itself. The two Raymond's were strangers four years ago, but later they became fast friends, and yesterday the Bismarck mayor was only too glad to box carefully, and send to his Fargo namesake, the bottle of extra dry and hilarious.

THE Minneapolis Tribune pays Hon. J. F. Wallace the following compliment: "If ever there was a man who is full of energy in a good cause that man is Mr. J. F. Wallace, the gentleman who has this show in hand. He has hung a couple of cardboards up, one at each doorway of his house, on which is printed a notification to the effect that the 'latch-string' is down, or, in other words, that all who desire to walk inside will be welcome. When he gets his friends around him—new as well as old—he never tires of showing them the produce of Burleigh county, North Dakota, and pointing out to them its excellences. He is irrepressibly genial or genially irrepressible—it is a conundrum which."

THE new directory of St. Paul has been completed, and now the residents of that city are turning summersaults over the falls of St. Anthony in fiendish glee because they have 3,000 more population than Minneapolis. The directory contains 30,334 names against 28,938 names in the Minneapolis directory. Applying the usual multiple of $2\frac{1}{2}$ to each name it makes the population of St. Paul 75,845, and of Minneapolis 72,344. The Globe thinks the fact that St. Paul has increased 6,948 names in a year is healthy.

In speaking of the combined efforts of the Union Pacific and Utah Northern to injure the interests of the North Pacific, the Miles City Press says: "If the merchants and cattle men of Montana are wise they will stand by this new corporation, and spurn any offers that may be made by these soulless corporations, that have hitherto sucked their life-blood, and impoverished, to a great extent, the mining and cattle interests of this Territory."

OVER half of the reading matter space in the Duluth Tribune now-a-days is filled with articles of defense against a little six-liner in the Bee, a new paper just started in Duluth. The Tribune doesn't seem to know enough to get away from the nest after being stung. It takes more than a "shoo" to discourage a Bee.

THE Grand Forks convention met Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock when Mr. Hughes, chairman of the committee on credentials, submitted the report of that committee. This report gave nearly all the contesting counties to the Hand faction. Mr. C. H. Winsor submitted a minority report. A vote was taken by counties, and the minority report was adopted, except as to Grant and Lawrence counties. From this time on it was evident that Raymond was the winner. As soon as the convention had disposed of the report of the committee, R. F. Pettigrew arose and said that in the interest of harmony he would withdraw in favor of John B. Raymond, of Fargo. His speech was short and eloquent, and was received with great applause. E. P. Wells, of Jamestown, nominated John B. Raymond as candidate for delegate to Congress. E. A. Williams, of Burleigh county, nominated John McLean. A ballot was taken, which resulted as follows: Burleigh county, ten votes for McLean; Hand county for Jud. Lamour. The following counties cast their entire vote for Raymond, viz: Aurora, Bonhomme, Barnes, Beadle, Brule, Cass, Clay, Coddington, Custer, Charles Mix, Clark, Deuel, Grand Forks, Griggs, Hanson, Haakon, Kidder, Lake, Lawrence, Lincoln, La.our, McCook, Minnehaha, Moody, Morton, Pennington, Richland, Ransom, Sully, Spink, Traill, Walsh and Dickey. The other counties refused to cast their votes.

CYNICAL and bad hearted men have said that a good character has no weight in politics, but instances are constantly arising to disprove that assertion. When Roscoe Conkling under a tremendous misapprehension as to the temper of his constituents, resigned his seat in the senate, his enormous folly almost cost him his political life. But Mr. Conkling is not politically dead, and that he is not, is due to the fact that he has never been mixed up in any questionable scheme of self-enrichment, at the expense of the people. But for this great saving fact Mr. Conkling would to-day be a mere political reminiscence. People now remember that his character is unimpeached, and that will be the rallying cry in the battle which will place Mr. Conkling again in power. Young men aspiring to political distinction should not fail to grasp the moral which Conkling's career thus inculcates.

The Bismarck Tribune.

Newspaper Patronage.

There are so many people who do not seem to know the value of a newspaper and the relation which should exist between the reader and the publisher that the following from the Chicago Newspaper Union is given place in these columns. "We do not like the word as commonly applied to newspapers. There is no patronage where equivalents pass between the parties. If it be admitted that a newspaper in a given community is good for nothing and yet is maintained by contributions, whether called subscription payments or something else, by the people of that community, then that sheet is patronized." And if there be such a sheet its patron is a fool. Better let it die and a fine man build on its ruins a thing of worth. But when, as we believe is usually the case, the newspaper gives vastly more of value than it receives—in many an issue a whole volume of matter for five cents—it would be more appropriate and truer to the fact to say that the newspaper patronizes its subscribers than that they patronize the paper. We want to see the press get credit for what it does. And we want to see it come in the country. Of course everybody admits that the press—the great American far-off press—is a benefactor, a great educator, the voice of liberty, and all that. When it comes to the home paper, however, that is too near to be fairly judged. It is the prophet not without honor save in its own country. Yet the newspaper is the leading promoter of new industries, the voice which calls the people together for action in emergencies, and in many ways an essential public institution—in every issue performing services to the public which from their nature cannot be scheduled for remuneration, and are still of high value. Let every publisher repudiate "patronage." We must find a better name for transactions in which we give a full consideration for all that is received.

A certain independence, is pervading the profession in some quarters which it is pleasant to notice. We have heard lately of a publisher who was waited upon in his office by a citizen who with a grand air informed him that, though he already had more newspapers than he could read, he nevertheless thought he would patronize the paper at home by giving it his two dollars. The publisher resented his visitor's lofty style by informing him that he was not in need of his money, and should not take it on any such terms. The matter ended in the man's taking the paper because he wanted it to read, and in his having a different opinion from that he had previously entertained of its publisher. People are apt to accept a man's valuation of his own property, especially if it be a low one. It pays to have a good opinion of one's self and one's profession, if it is not higher than is warranted to be, and self-depreciation in business is positive weakness.

Saved by a Pool Check.

Grand Forks Herald, (This morning about 3 o'clock, a revolver shot was heard near the corner of Kittson avenue and Third street, which brought out Officer Faden to investigate. He discovered a large, heavy, black mustached, piratical looking man, who looked like a burglar of the most malignant type, and a thoroughbred slugging from the ground up. The officer made a raid and immediately went into executive session with him. He accused the suspicious character of firing the shot, which was denied. "What's your name?" asked the officer. "Lounsbury." "Where are you from?" "Bismarck." "Who are you?" "Postmaster, and not altogether unconnected with the Tribune." But the officer wouldn't believe him, and proceeded to search his "take." He found a pool check, a convention pass and a leaf pencil, on the strength of which the dramatic editor of the TRIBUNE was allowed to proceed to his hotel.

Wallace and the Fiddler.

The awarding of a silk banner to a country fiddler's superior exhibit has a peculiar interest in the delegates in charge. Fiddler, of St. Paul (Globe in speaking of Thursday's proceedings, says:—Bismarck boomed tremendously all day and Burleigh people are in high spirits over their victory, and as proud of their exhibit as they are of the banner it set off. Monday and afternoon booming fiddles were heard, when a harper and fiddler furnished music while B. F. Wallace mounted a tub in their wheated cottage, and dispensed copies of "The Banner City" to the amused spectators who filed past, all the while deriding vigorously and enthusiastically upon the sweet melody of Ellen in the Missouri valley. "Plain old farmers came down here 500 miles to capture that banner." "No railroad humbug," published by an agricultural society. "Plenty of work for rustlers." "No room for loafers." Five years ago they said it was the bad habit, and now we've come down here and scooped 'em all," were among the grunts that were caught and pinned to the leaves of the reporter's note book as they fell from the lips of the orator.

Railroad Ties.

It is reported that a road from Billings to Benton will be built immediately. The Yellowstone division of the North Pacific will be open for traffic to Billings the 17th. The Oregon Transcontinental company will build a branch line to the National Park next season sure.

October 1st, a tri-weekly line of stages, running in connection with the North Pacific railway, will be put on from Miles City to Deadwood.

General Passenger Agent Barnes of the North Pacific expects to go out with the Yellowstone excursion, which will arrive here to-night, to participate in a buffalo hunt in Pyramid Park.

Mr. F. J. Haynes of Fargo is on his return from a trip to the National Park, undertaken on behalf of the North Pacific company. He brings back about 200 photographic views of scenes in the park, which after being properly mounted will be placed on exhibition in the company's general offices at St. Paul.

Echo Answers Why?

Fargo Argus.—Burleigh county carries off the prize banner for the finest display of agricultural products at the Minneapolis fair. The collection is to be exhibited at the Milwaukee, Chicago and St. Louis exhibitions. Burleigh county is to be congratulated on her success, but why is Cass county in the background?

Beauty of a Record.

Gall, the Sioux chief, who attended the Minneapolis fair, has a war record, and when he told the committee that he wanted Burleigh county to get that banner, he meant it, and the committee knew it.

The Sioux City Times, whose shallow-pated editor, Charley Collins, once ran a crazy sheet in Bismarck, indulges in this unwarranted thrust at Dakota's new marshal: "The Bismarck Tribune of Saturday gives a biographical sketch of Harrison Allen, the newly appointed United States marshal for Dakota, wherein it mentions among other things that he was one of the now historic three hundred and six, at the Chicago presidential convention, also that he is 'one of the ablest and most thrilling speakers in the country.' In looking at him from the opposite side of Fourth street, when he passed through here last week, we took him to be a remarkable personage, and there were others besides ourselves who, in taking in his long hair, his much used and apparently dilapidated plug hat and other special peculiarities of make-up, were at a loss whether to put him down as a corn doctor or an itinerant bun, but we are glad to know he's distinguished, even if distinguishing abilities don't aid him to perform the duties of an United States marshal."

As a gatherer of the news it must be conceded the Grand Forks Herald is a rustler. It published regularly every morning very complete reports of the proceedings of the credentials committee, notwithstanding the committee took the utmost precautions to insure secrecy. The Hand delegates attempted to have a caucus, but their proceedings also were printed by the Herald. The enterprising sheet refuses to divulge its means of getting the news, but intimates that one of the Hand meetings was reported by a man uncomfortably sowed away in an old stove which stood in the room.

Or all the distinguished Burleigh county boomers at the Minneapolis fair none were more delighted over the capture of the banner than Running Antelope, Gaul and Crow King. They each delivered a speech, which appeared next morning in the Pioneer Press. Gaul, in the course of his remarks, said the Standing Rock Indians hoped to be able next year to take the banner.

The brutal treatment to which Espinosa, the "Mexican Dare-devil," subjected his horses in the late race on the Minneapolis fair ground caused general indignation. Col. King and Espinosa were both arrested at the instance of an agent of the Humane Society, on a charge of cruelty to animals.

MARSHAL ALLEN has appointed M. G. Cushing, of Valley City, deputy marshal for the district comprising Barnes, Ransom, Stutsman, Griggs, La Moure, Dickey, Wells and Kidder counties, with headquarters at Valley City.

PETTIGREW never winced. A Grand Forks telegram says: "Mr. Pettigrew's gallant bearing during the entire fight has been such as to win him many high encomiums and endear him to all his friends."

SOME men have greatness thrust upon them. The Jamestown Alert insists that "the Tribune man" wrote the poetry on the banner which appeared Friday morning in this paper.

JAMESTOWN Alert: In their exultation over the nomination of Raymond, Fargo is said to have illuminated so brilliantly last night that their electric light actually made a shadow.

BOB INGERSOLL'S argument in the star route trial was, as his utterances are wont to be, very eloquent. The passage which is regarded as being the most characteristic sentiment, and the best example of his style, is this tribute to woman, which occurred in the peroration: "This prosecution has trampled upon the holiest of human ties, and has even made light of it because a wife in this trial had sat by her husband's side. There is a painting in the Louvre: a painting of desolation, of despair, of love. It represents the night of the crucifixion, where the world is wrapped in shadows, the stars are dead, and yet in the darkness is a kneeling form. It is Mary Magdalene, with loving lips and hands pressed against the bleeding feet of Christ. The skies were never dark enough, or starless enough, the storm was never fierce enough nor wild enough, the quick bolts of heaven were never lurid enough, and the arrows of never flew thick enough to drive a noble woman from her husband's side."

GRAND FORKS Plaindealer: The Burleigh county delegation are as happy over the fact that Bismarck won the silk banner at the Minneapolis fair, as they would be were Col. Lounsbury nominated for congress.

Miss Cleveland, the temperance lecturer, who visited Bismarck about a year ago, is now superintending the harvesting on her farm, near Pierre.

Hunt and McCull, two famous pedestrians, will engage in a walking contest at Grand Forks this evening for $500 a side. A twenty-seven hour match.

From time immemorial watermelon "cooling" has been indulged in by the young boys, and once in a while you hear of a man well along in years, who has not forgotten "how 'tis done."

The Mandan Pioneer says: Judge Collins was an eye-witness of the festivities indulged in on the other side incident upon the arrival of the banner. The judge feels as proud of the banner as if he had it in his pocket.

Mandan Pioneer, yesterday: Paddy Byrne took a trip to Bismarck this morning to confer with Capt. Marhitta, we presume, as to the advisability of endorsing Capt. Raymond's nomination from a democratic standpoint.

The Tribune calls the attention of its readers to the advertisement of the Moorhead Car and Agricultural Works, which appears in this issue. It is managed and backed by live, energetic business men. Any orders entrusted to their care will receive prompt attention. Good work and satisfaction guaranteed.

The Valley City Times says of the duel between C. Corey and Louis Strass, which was to have taken place in that city on the 15th: "For the benefit of an awaiting and anxious public, the Times will state that the principals have about decided to take the advice of the Jamestown Alert, and engage in a match in raising wheat and booming the resources of this magnificent country."

Purely Personal.

C. W. March, Meawegua, Ill., is in the city with both eyes open for an investment.

R. B. Anderson and Frank Welton, of Clarkdale, Ill., are at the Merchants.

Frank J. Mead, the Mandan boomer, and Alex. McKenzie were passengers by last night's train from the east.

J. E. Hamble, Fargo; R. S. Brookings, Dickinson; A. Fleming, An Arbor, Mich.; Geo. Schomacker, Fargo; J. D. Sadler, Fort Yates; Paul Waterman, Fort Lincoln, are registered at the Merchants.

Col. Crossen, proprietor of the Monongahela house, Pittsburg, together with Chas. J. Clark, Esq., owner of the Clark farm, arrived by last night's train. They will visit C. K. Oddy, and will return to Bismarck to-morrow.

New Plats Received.

Township plats of 139, ranges 92 and 94, were received by last evening's mail at the United States land office. This includes the Gladstone country.

A Terrible Cut.

L. S. Smith, C. E. LaSalle, took charge of the post-office newsstand. Bismarck has had a stylish news depot. Mr. LaSalle is a live and energetic man, and knows just the kind of literature the people want. He is bound that this shall become a reading community, and will do all in his power to make it such. His latest scheme is a revolution in the prices of magazines and periodicals. These are now sold at from ten to fifty per cent. less than usual. His scale of prices was published yesterday.

One Hundred Bushels Per Acre.

Quinn and Waldron yesterday threshed two acres of oats for Lambert Hesse who is living on the farm owned by L. Harriman, near Bismarck, which yielded two hundred bushels. Mr. Hesse not only gets the amount of grain stored but has fed one team from the bundle ever since harvest which would raise the yield at least eight bushels per acre. They threshed five bushels per minute part of the time.

The Elevator.

Yesterday the new elevator had reached a height of about thirty feet. It has about forty feet further to go before its completion. It will be a model building. The company has decided to face the building with iron, which will make the structure fire proof. There are now at work on the building nearly thirty men. The work has been delayed somewhat by the scarcity of spikes, but it is expected the building will be ready for wheat in twenty-five days.

A Level Head at Grand Forks.

Grand Forks Plaindealer: The Plaindealer acknowledges a pleasant call from Col. Lounsberry, J. A. Stoyell, J. A. McKean, and E. A. Williams of Burleigh county. Bismarck, they report as enjoying a remarkable boom, and the writer who knows something of the city, its advantages and surrounding country, does not hesitate to say that Bismarck will always be the chief city of the Missouri river slope, and in less than two years will be the largest city on the North Pacific railroad.

That Bridge Business.

In justice to the 100 or more good, sober men who are at work on the bridge, the TRIBUNE wishes to state that so far as can be learned, George M. Smith, deceased, was a very honorable and industrious man, and having many friends his funeral was one of the best attended ever held in Bismarck. The friends of the deceased, after the funeral, went about their business, while a few roughs put in the day in a disgraceful manner at Bismarck. Mr. Smith's friends feel uneasy lest the impression should get out that they were mixed up in the row, which was not the case.

Have We Incendiaries Among Us?

Just before noon, yesterday, a fire was discovered by Marshal Francis, under the western end of McLean & Macnider's warehouse. A few buckets of water were found sufficient to extinguish the blaze. It was evidently a deliberate attempt at incendiarism.

Do You Want Seeds or Trees?

Mr. E. W. Sherman, representing Wyman Eliot, the Minneapolis seed man, will return from his western tour in a few days and stop off at Bismarck. Mr. Sherman represents an excellent house, and those wanting seeds, fruits or shade trees, plants, etc., should reserve their orders. This house also makes a specialty of shipping all kinds of fruits in season, and at a low figure.

Fruits and Vegetables.

Wyman Eliot, Minneapolis, makes a specialty of buying fruits and vegetables in the Minneapolis market, and shipping to fill orders. Persons at Bismarck or the military posts, can do better by ordering through him than if they were on hand to make their purchases directly.

Republican Central Committee Meeting.

A meeting of the Republican Central committee of Burleigh county is hereby called to convene at the office of the undersigned, in Bismarck, on Saturday, the 16th inst. at 10 o'clock a. m. Business of importance will be transacted. All members are requested to be present.

E. A. WILLIAMS,
Chairman.

Bismarck, Sept. 14, 1882.

Valley City Politics.

VALLEY CITY, D. T., Sept. 9.—[Special]—At the caucus held here to-day the Adams-Root faction attempted to steal the fifteen delegates to the county legislative convention by breaking into the court room (which the sheriff had locked to insure fair play and defeat the proposed steal) before 2 o'clock, the hour named for the caucus. They elected A. S. Campbell (who was drunk at the time) chairman, and J. W. Scott, secretary. Campbell took his seat, but Scott did not show up. They hurriedly proceeded to elect Adams delegates. Root placed his ticket in nomination and without a vote being taken, Campbell announced it unanimously elected, and declared the caucus adjourned. It was not yet two o'clock by a hundred watches. Confusion reigned supreme. Order being partially restored, at exactly two o'clock, M. G. Cushing was elected chairman, and F. C. Clarke, secretary. Then followed a scene of the wildest disorder. The leaders of the fraudulent faction tried to reseat their chairman by bullying tactics, comes, chairs and fists were used by Campbell, Root and others, until the sheriff was called on to arrest Campbell and his drunken and disorderly conduct. After a five minutes recess, the meeting elected fifteen delegates by a vote of 266 to 44, and the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the lawful delegates of this convention, above named, be instructed to cast their votes solid for their honest and able fellow citizen B. W. Benson, for candidate of the fourteenth district for the next legislature.

Resolved, That we tender the thanks of this convention to its able chairman, Maj. M. G. Cushing, and to the secretary and tellers thereof for their able and faithful performance of their duties.

The action of the Root-Adams combination received general condemnation, and won Benson at least seventy-five votes in the caucus. Nine out of Adams' fifteen delegates declined to be a party to such a shame-faced fraud, and refused to attend the convention. Benson has secured twenty-seven of the forty delegates to the convention, with four precincts to hear from. There is general rejoicing, bonfires, etc. The Raymond victory at Grand Forks gives general satisfaction.

To-day at Mandan, Dr. Bentley's horse will run against Mr. Hager's Bay Billy, for a stake of $200. Hager's horse was formerly known as the Standing Rock running horse. Much interest in the event is felt in Bismarck.

Death to the Parasites.

PRICES OF LOTS

STEELE,
County Seat Kidder County.

Prices Good for a Short Time
Only.

Kidder County is the best watered and one of the most fertile counties on the line of the North Pacific. It is being rapidly settled up, and Steele is the county seat. It is midway between Bismarck and Jamestown, and will certainly be the largest and best town between those two points. There is already built an elegant $4,000 hotel and good court house, which is supplied with as full and complete set of county records as can be found anywhere. There are four good stores and a bank building, and a fifty foot front store building is to be erected immediately. It is on the Steele farm, adjoining the townsite, that the largest yield per acre of No. 1 hard wheat has been raised on the line of the road, and his crops this year can now be seen by anyone inclined to doubt the above statement. The following prices of lots are good for only a short time, as property is rapidly increasing in value, and these lots are cheaper than in any town of one-half its prospects in the northwest.
